Sheriff Coney has an automobile that will soon have to be armored if the Japanese gamblers of his section continue their warlike program.

While the authorities are fiddling over what should or should not be enforced, it is to be hoped the legislators are contemplating a law that can be enforced.

The reason given by Vospatnikin Sabevich for the Russians wearing such great beards is that they are waiting for the Japanese to come over and shave them, as was promised.

The public may be a little slow, but in the end it generally sees the solution of a public difficulty much more clearly than those who are always proffering advice, which is safest when not followed.

That alleged Republican campaign fund of $10,000,000 would not have been a drop in the bucket had it been used in buying, at the usual figure, that big majority of votes that deluged the Republican candidates.

With the Hon. Joe Manley, the Hon. "Figgers" Grosvenor and the Hon. Nathan B. Scott agreeing that Mr. Roosevelt's election is certain, counting the ballots is a perfunctory detail.—New York World, Oct. 29.
That's just what it was.

Now General Corbin announces there is too much matrimony in the army; and just once in a great while you can find some fellow who believes there is too much matrimony outside of the army; but, like General Corbin, he is a prominent exception.

SOURCE OF THANKSGIVING.

When Hawaii talks of why it should give thanks, the price of sugar and all its attendant benefits will probably veneer the first thought. Bread and butter considerations usually do have first place in the esteem of communities as well as individuals. As Hawaii is reasonably comfortable in this respect this year and gives promise to be more so, its citizens ought to have enough time and good intention to devote some thought to the text for Thanksgiving offered by the President.

Has Hawaii reason to give thanks for the increase in civic pride, the strengthening of independent citizenship and manhood during the past year? And are its citizens centering their energies to make the record of the coming year better?

It is reasonable to suppose that these questions will be answered according to the civic enthusiasm of the individual. We have men in this Territory who are satisfied within themselves that the people should be held down, not educated. We ought to give thanks for such men on the theory that hell is a good thing because it makes Heaven appear the more attractive. Hawaii has other men who know what ought to be done to build up higher standards of citizenship and interest the people generally in public movements but are either too cowardly or too lazy or too deficient in ideals to put themselves into the work.

Hawaii, however, is not without the men of ideals that ring true, liberal in thought, unflinching in enthusiasm, honest in conviction, fair in their dealings, loyal to their country and its foundation national principles, unselfish, patriotic, workers. Such are the citizens for which Hawaii has reason to give thanks. On the growth of the sentiment such men promote, depends the measure of gratitude with which those of today and their posterity can contemplate the trend of events.

This Territory has no small task on its hands in shaping the course of the future to satisfy the highest demands of American ideals. The task appears bigger than any other portion of the country has because it is nearer. It is large enough at all events and of sufficient import to attract the best, unselfish thought and work that can be given. A mass of conflicting, social and industrial interests must be amalgamated and fused with educated American common sense, in order to bring this Territory and its people to the full enjoyment of the marvelously promising opportunities. No set rule can be laid down for accomplishing the ideal end. Unity and breadth of purpose among the citizens and the best common school education modern educators can provide are necessities properly classed as absolute.

THANKSGIVING

(By the President.)

We are thankful for all that has been done for us in the past, and we pray that in the future we may be strengthened in the unending struggle to do our duty fearlessly and honestly, with charity and good-will, with respect for ourselves and love toward our fellowmen.

In this great republic the effort to combine national strength with personal freedom is being tried on a scale more gigantic than ever before in the world's history.

Our success will mean much not only for ourselves, but for the future of all mankind; and every man or woman in our land should feel the grave responsibility resting upon him or her, for in the last analysis this success must depend upon the high average of our individual citizenship, upon the way in which each of us does his duty by himself and his neighbor.

FINE EATS CHICK

money in regard to the handing over of a check for $5100 to the Land office. To place facts concerning this check in evidence before the jury necessitated the hopping on and off the stand of various witnesses, giving place to one another as occasion and the objections of the defense demanded. Facts were dragged out piece by piece, and little pieces at that.

The second count of the indictment against Stephen Mahaulu recites that the Waianae Co. paid to Stephen Mahaulu, as sub-agent of the Fifth Land District, the sum of $4500 for rent of lands, and goes on to declare that Mahaulu made no accounting of the money. Dowsett stated that a check was made out to the Commissioner of Public Lands for the sum of $5100, $4500 being in payment of certain rents and $600 being in payment of certain other rents. Separate receipts were given for the two payments.

Thompson objected to evidence touching on the $600 payment, as having nothing to do with the case before the court; Prosser wanted to get in this testimony to explain the disposition of the check for $5100.

Judge Gear overruled objection. "Have you made any effort to find this check?" asked Prosser of Dowsett.

"Yes, and I cannot find it," Dowsett stated that it was his custom to destroy all checks after keeping them for a year.

"Can you recollect the writing on the check?"

Thompson objected and commenced to argue. Dowsett declared that he knew exactly what checks were destroyed. He had made up certain bundles of checks for destruction and had given them to his office assistant to be burned. He knew the check in question had been destroyed. Here followed considerable argument, Thompson claiming that there was nothing to prove that the check had been destroyed and Prosser contending that Dowsett had sufficiently shown that the paper was no more.

Dowsett testified that the check was numbered "691" and was dated "January 23, 1904." When asked as to the further contents of the document, objection was made by defense, it being claimed that the check was the best evidence as to these facts. Dowsett was finally able to say that the check was made out to the Commissioner of Public Lands. Here Thompson objected on the ground that the Commissioner was not charged with any offense.

"Well," said Prosser, "whoever got the money and pinched it is the guilty man."

"Was the check paid?" asked Prosser.

Thompson again objected, holding that the check itself was the best evidence.

Dowsett said he could prove that the check was paid by referring to his account with Spreckels & Co. Thompson said the accounts of the banking firm were the best evidence.

"We have it right here," said Prosser.

Dowsett was removed from the stand and Cashier Spalding of Spreckels & Co. was put on. He exhibited a large book. Amid a storm of objections as to the admission of testimony concerning the book, it was shown that the check had been paid. First of all, however, Spalding testified that the entries were not in his handwriting, they were in the hand of B. F. Beardmore. Thompson objected to Spalding having anything further to say; Beardmore was the best evidence. Beardmore was called and swore to his own hand. Later W. R. Combs, who has been in Dowsett's office, was called to testify to the burning of the checks which Dowsett had given him to destroy.

"And did you watch and see every one of those checks eaten up by the flames?" asked Prosser.

"I did," answered Combs.

Then Dowsett was called back to the box.

The morning session wound up with Former Land Commissioner Edward S. Boyd testifying.

Boyd was accompanied to the court room by a police officer, his bondsman having surrendered him some days ago, Boyd having been convicted of embezzlement from the Land Office and appealing from Robinson's court, where he was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment. His testimony has not yet reached the sensational stage, if it is bound that way.

Trial continues this afternoon. There will be no session of court tomorrow, Thanksgiving day, and the case will probably occupy Friday and Saturday.

NORTHERN MINERS WOULD LIKE HAWAII

H. B. Cameron, gold commissioner for the Atlin mining district in British Columbia, is in the city for a change of climate and a few weeks respite from weighing gold nuggets and hearing arguments of rival claimants to auriferous earth.

Mr. Cameron is the type of miner who invariably strikes pay dirt and, like all others in the successful argonaut class, he tempers his strenuous calling with occasional vacations and ransacks the earth for the most pleasant spots. He came to Honolulu by accident. A few weeks ago he was getting a shine at a Victoria bootblack stand, wondering, the while, where on earth to direct his way to make the best use of his winter furrows.

An acquaintance passed and the mining man said, "Hello, where are you going?"

"I am taking the Miowera for Honolulu."

"Thank you," said Mr. Cameron, "for the loan. I shall go with you. The bootblack was paid. The boat was caught and Mr. Cameron arrived in schedule time at the Pacific paradise."

"I have called at your Promotion Committee headquarters and I am sure I have been given a good pointer. There are hundreds, many hundreds of successful miners in Alaska and British Columbia who want to go somewhere each winter. They are all like I was. They don't know where to go. If they knew what a place this is for a rest and change from northern rigors, they would come. They are the fellows who have the money to spend and who want to spend it under comfortable surroundings. Honolulu is the ideal spot for the northern miner to spend his winter. He would be happy if some one would show him the way down here and tell him about the winter charms of this lovely city. The miner's holiday is now winter and it is then he is looking out for a good time. Your Promotion Committee can find a no more fertile field for its tourist propaganda than among the miners and mining men of the Northwest."

Mr. Cameron states that the introduction of hydraulic machinery in the Atlin district is going on rapidly and the output of gold will increase accordingly. He reports labor very scarce during the past season at Dawson, the floating population having been attracted in large numbers to the Tanana fields on the American side.

"When I return to Atlin," said Mr. Cameron, "I will constitute myself a committee of one to do all the promoting I can for Hawaii. I know I can not perform a better service than to direct to this place, men who grow weary with the rigors of the northern climate."

HATTER DISCUSSES ROBBERY MYSTERY

YOUNG HOTEL

The police have not as yet made any tangible discovery in the Young Hotel robbery mystery, but several clues are being diligently followed up. Last night Pinkerton Detective Hatter started working on the case in earnest and the Police Department hopes that his efforts may bring forth some results.

"It is a mistake to say that I have been actively engaged in this case all the while," said Hatter to a Bulletin reporter today. "As a matter of fact, I have during the last few weeks been entirely too busy with work in other lines to be able to give any time to this case."

In fact, I am not now identified with the Police Department and have but little time to do Police Department work. I started working on the case about two or three weeks ago when the robberies were first reported to me. I made some inquiries the first day but after that I had to drop the matter on account of the pressure of other work. I left the case alone until last night, when I again took it up. I made several inquiries from different people at the hotel to get all the facts I could and to satisfy myself about certain matters. I shall now probably go ahead with the case, but of course at this time I am not able to give out any points that I may be working on."

TYPICAL HAWAIIAN CALENDAR.

Maiewa Limited.

The most attractive day's outing is that afforded by the excursion down the railroad line. The MAIEWA LIMITED, a first-class train, leaves Honolulu every Sunday morning at 8:22 o'clock, making the run in two hours, the rate for round trip being only $2.00. From 10:22 a. m. until 8:10 p. m. is spent at the beautiful HOTEL MAIEWA, with fresh and salt water bathing, tennis, golf, drives and walks, shooting or fishing, and you are back in town at 10:10 o'clock in the evening.

Another fact showing the evident trend of the investigation is the sudden abduction of Umi, a Japanese woman, who, with her husband, works at the house where a former officer lives. One night last week a detective called at the house and asked for Umi. He told the woman to go with him in a hack and that she would only be absent for about half an hour. Whereupon Umi was taken to the Oahu prison as

A UNITED STATES SENATOR

Used Pe-runa For Dyspepsia With Great Benefit.

HON. M. C. BUTLER,
Ex-United States Senator From South Carolina.

EX-UNITED STATES SENATOR M. C. Butler from South Carolina, was Senator from that state for two terms. In a recent letter from Washington, D. C., he says:

"I can recommend Pe-runa for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."—M. C. Butler.

Pe-runa is not simply a remedy for dyspepsia. Pe-runa is a cathartic remedy. Pe-runa cures dyspepsia because it is generally dependent upon catarrh of the stomach.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-runa, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O. For special directions every one should read "The Ills of Life," a copy of which surrounds each bottle. Pe-runa is for sale by all chemists and druggists at one dollar per bottle, or six bottles for five dollars.

Those wishing direct correspondence with Dr. Hartman and can wait the necessary delay in receiving a reply, should address Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, U. S. A.

Benson, Smith & Co. will supply the retail drug trade in Honolulu.

SEARCHLIGHT NOW DWELLS ON POLICE

Under the bustle of police department changes and re-organization, Hatter investigations and reports and enforcement of old dead letter laws, the Grand Jury has been quietly conducting an investigation of its own on the old much-talked-of subject of questionable methods and possible corruption of the police department. The Grand Jury, it seems, has not found anything suspicious with the men who occupied high place but other officers formerly in the employ of the police department have been, and are being, subjected to the searchlight of the investigation.

That the Grand Jurors have been busy examining the state of affairs in the police department can be seen from several evident signs. Former officers of the department and especially informers and spies used by these officers, have been examined and re-examined, it is said, with the possible result of several indictments.

Among the men who have been pumped for information is Ah Nam, a Chinese of a more than questionable reputation. He first came in touch with the police by being arrested together with seven or eight other Chinese, on a charge of robbery. The case developed into the unearthing of a regular systematized robber gang which had perpetrated a great number of daring robberies in Honolulu and its vicinity and which had terrorized a big portion of the community. Ah Nam readily confessed all the misdeeds he had been responsible for, as well as those of his comrades, and in this way saved himself from some unpleasantness even if he could not escape indictment.

In the meantime the police used Ah Nam's information regarding the criminal strata of the city with good returns and the criminal became an informer who proved valuable in many cases in which he was used.

Now Ah Nam is at the police station. He was brought there from the prison, where he was awaiting trial a short time ago. Every now and then this interesting gentleman is taken before the inquisitors for examination, principally concerning the police methods and the corruption which they are after.

Another fact showing the evident trend of the investigation is the sudden abduction of Umi, a Japanese woman, who, with her husband, works at the house where a former officer lives. One night last week a detective called at the house and asked for Umi. He told the woman to go with him in a hack and that she would only be absent for about half an hour. What authority there was for the detention of the woman and what happened to her during her absence from her home is still a mystery. The woman will give no information, being evidently in fear of breaking instructions to keep silence.

Ah On, who was one of the most efficient officers on the force, and who resigned his commission when the change in the department took place, has also been examined but with no result forthcoming. High Sheriff Henry stated, when asked regarding the mysterious investigation which was going on, said neither the police department or he personally had anything to do with it. It was quite evident that such an investigation was going on but it was being conducted at higher places and not by the department.

There have been sixteen machines entered for the Automobile Floral Parade tomorrow. Among the entries are Mr. Deering, Mr. Young, Mr. C. M. Cooke, Captain Graham, Dr. Anderson, Gus Schumann, C. von Hamm, C. L. Wight, Col. Sam. Parker, Robert Barclay, Mr. Dwyer, Dr. Hoffmann and Dr. Waterhouse.

The automobiles will meet at Union Square in front of the Capitol at 10 o'clock and move promptly at 10:30. They will run to Kaplani Park, where the prizes will be awarded. The basis of the awards will be solely the beauty of the picture presented by the individual machines without reference to size or cost of machine.

After judgment has been passed the automobiles will return to town through the residence portion of the city. In the afternoon all the decorated automobiles will be at the football grounds.
